

If You're Still Using Stock Photos, You've Got An Image Problem.

Big corporations pay big fees to use stock photos. And you never know when that same photo will show up somewhere else...diminishing the power, value and originality of your message. Dana Hursey Photography has been providing Fortune 500 companies with exclusive corporate image libraries that custom match their business models, services and branding messages for over a decade. And they've done it with great success.

They eliminate all the non-exclusivity, limited time usage and the generic one-photo-fits-all disadvantages of using stock photography. They work creatively and collaboratively with your team to create a complete library of proprietary images that represent your unique qualities. And corporations have found it more cost effective than using stock images.

So take a look at www.corporateimagelibraries.com and consider the benefits of creating your own image library. Because how can you reinforce your own image when you're using someone else's?

Corporate Image Libraries.™ Image is everything.

www.corporateimagelibraries.com

 DANA HURSEY PHOTOGRAPHY